As counsel to his clients, David Blackorby serves both as a legal advisor and strategic consultant. His global business experience, coupled with being a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) and his years as a senior government litigator, allows him to comprehensively assist clients and their businesses in protecting their operations, supply chains and regulatory compliance through preventive measures, mitigation and, when necessary, litigation.

Experience

- Advise clients on supply chain security and compliance programs with regulatory import/export requirements of the U.S. (C-TPAT), Canada (PIP), UK, EU, Mexico and Americas (AEO).
- Counsel clients on core global sourcing, asset protection and security business operations to mitigate risk related to personal security, facilities security, transportation and information security.
- Assess clients' needs initiating or upgrading current integrated physical and digital dot com operations for cyber security.
- Advise clients on the development and management of security compliance programs in the areas of supply chain, site, travel, employee vetting and internal investigations.
- Provide clients with investigative evaluations and legal representation on issues of financial irregularities, hedge-fund and money manipulations to include money laundering.
- Assist clients with internal assessments and representation to inquiries made by regulatory agencies as to tax, Medicare and health care compliance issues.
- Address issues of internal misconduct or corruption by company leadership with providing appropriate analysis to the company's governing organization.
