

Products Liability Series: Does Arkansas Law Recognize a Claim for Failure to Instruct?

Devin Bates

dbates@mwlaw.com

(501) 688.8864

12/13/2022

Does Arkansas law recognize a claim for failure to instruct? Yes. But this cause of action applies only to manufacturers, not suppliers. A manufacturer of a product has a duty to give reasonable and adequate instructions with respect to the conditions and methods of a product's safe use when danger is reasonably foreseeable in its use, unless the danger is known to the user or is reasonably discoverable by him. AMI 1003.

View more of our Between the Lines products liability blog posts.

Benjamin Jackson

bjackson@mwlaw.com

(501) 688.8887