The Arkansas Advanced Energy Association (“AAEA”) announced that the Arkansas Energy Performance Contracting Summit (“Summit”) will be held on June 19th.

The Summit will be held at the Heifer Village in Little Rock, Arkansas.

AAEA and the Arkansas Energy Office are cosponsoring the event.

Energy performance contracting is described as a key cost-savings tool for state agencies, colleges and universities, and cities, counties and municipal utilities.

AAEA states that the Summit will bring together state agency and higher education officials, city and county representatives, facilities managers, and energy service companies and contractors.
