The Arkansas Water Resources Center (“AWRC”) announced the dates for its annual Water Conference (“Conference”).

The Conference will be held July 30 and 31 in Fayetteville, Arkansas.

AWRC states that the conference typically draws 100 to 150 researchers, students, agency personnel, municipal personnel, interested citizens and other water quality stakeholders from around the state and region.

The title of the Conference is:

Water Management and Nutrient Recovery

AWRC states that the Conference sessions will include:

- Water Management and Nutrient Recovery
- USGS research on the Mississippi Alluvial Plain

AWRC states that it is partnering with the Arkansas Chapter of the American Water Resources Association.

Conference information can be found here or by emailing Erin Scott at erins@uark.edu.
